

Hudson Maness is a violist based in Colorado whose playing has taken him around the world, having performed in summer music festivals such as the Montecito International Music Festival in California, the Tanglewood Music Festival in Massachusetts, and the Trentino Music Festival in Italy. He has performed orchestrally as Principal Violist in the Western Academy of Music Symphony Orchestra, Continental League Honor Orchestra, Colorado All-State Symphony Orchestra, and BUTI Young Artist Orchestra.

Aside from performing in Seiji Ozawa Hall, the Koussevitzky Music Shed, Boettcher Concert Hall, Monfort Concert Hall, Griffin Concert Hall, Hole Memorial Auditorium, and the PACE Center, he loves playing for weddings, private events, retirement homes, and restaurants.

Hudson currently studies with Caroline Paetsch, an alumna of The Juilliard School, and Christopher Luther, former Assistant Professor of Viola at the UNC School of Music. He has enjoyed master classes with renowned violists Yizhak Schotten, Dr. Timothy Deighton, Steven Ansell, and cellist Lynn Harrell. Other teachers include Mark Berger, Hye Min Choi, Miguel Perez, Hsin-Lin Tsai, and Melinda Lee Masur.
